Air Force Secretary De nies He Has Decided to Resign as Result of Activities.

WASHINGTON, July 30 (AP) Three highly place Republican Senators said today Secretary of the Air Force Harold E. Talbott is under mounting pressure to resign.

Talbott denied their statements that he had decided he "must go" because of (a) disclosures in a Senate investigation of his outside business activities, and (b) the possibility that he may become the target of a new Senate inquiry.

The two science groups said in a joint statement the satellite could indicate the difficulties and conditions to be met "if the day comes when man goes beyond the earth's atmosphere in his travels."

But that is for the future. First must come the initial jaunt into space by a satellite which will earry no human and may not have even any scientific equipment in it.

(Asked whether they expect to be able to go on to the construction of a man-carrying satellite of "military importance," the scientists told the United Press that the parent project is only the start of the experiment.

ANTI-SUBVERSIVE AFFIDAVITS

About 100 summer employes for the East St. Louis school board signed anti-subversive af-idiavits yesterday so they could get their paychecks in accordance with the Broyles law, which was signed by Gov. Willing G. Stratton July 19.

The Broyles law makes it illegal to pay salaries to state employes who refuse to swear they are not affiliated with any sub-rersive organization. None of those who signed affidavits yesterday objected to doing so, said Bolen Carter, assistant superintendent of schools.

Members of the State Highway Patrol, who will get paid Aug. 10, must sign similar affidavits prior to that date. School teachers who return to work in September will have to sign before the end of that month.

Two women were stabbed last night within the space of half an hour, apparently by a youth wielding a small leather worker's awl. He robbed one woman of her purse containing $5.

Miss Rosemary Schuster, 19 years old, of 5738 Waish street, told police a blond youth 14 or 15 years old approached her on a bicycle as she was walking south on Wherry avenue, near January avenue, at 10 p.m. The youth got off the bicycle, stabbed her in the abdomen and back, and then fled, she said.

The President Is to Blame

Your recent editorial to the effect that the President deserves the best of advice from his subordinates was excellent except you missed the point. In doing so you extended your hand in deep sympathy to Mr. Eisen-hower for conditions created for the most part by himself. As the Chief Executive it is his responsibility to select competent, reliable, and public-spirited, persons for executive roles in Federal departments and agencies. He must be able to discern between wise and faulty recommendations of those selected.

If a President is surrounded by in-dividuals exhibiting selfishness as concerns the public welfare and poor judgment on important national and world issues, then the lack of ability to serve as the political leader of our country is made apparent by his very inability to select proper persons to inability to select proper persons to head the offices for which he is re-

To admit these great mistakes in judgment, then brush them off, and continue to present the person as a great political leader is strange.

We seem incapable of criticizing a great war hero. We continue to ignore history which has shown, time and time again, that the profession al soldier is not mentally attuned to a civilian government leader Quit shedding tears for self-instigated incompetence and try to help the President become a civilian lead-er by constructive and honest criti-

Taxes in the County

Now that the County Council has shown it was merely indulging in a bit of empty bluff and bluster in threatening to resist the State Tax Commission's assessment order, county taxpayers may wish to consider where they stand and how they got there.

First, the State Tax Commission acted not out of caprice but in accordance with the mandate of the Missouri Constitution to "equalize assessments as between counties." Once the Commission had determined that St. Louis county as sessments were among the lowest in the statethey averaged only 18.12 per cent as against the average of 34.68 per cent in the City of St. Louis -it was legally and morally bound to increase

Second, assessments within St. Louis county presently are neither fair nor equitable; otherwise it would be a simple matter to raise them through a blanket increase. This is the responsibility in the first instance of County Assessor Phil G. Deuser, and in the second of the county's own Board of Equalization which is supposed to act when the assessor doesn't.

Third, Assessor Deuser knew as far back as last December that the state intended to order an increase in valuations; the rest of the county's officials knew about it as far back as Feb. 21. In all that time not one responsible official lifted a finger to correct the inequities that they eventually admitted existed.

Fourth, the method of applying the increasea blanket rise to each and every property owner which county officials admit will merely com pound the existing inequities-was devised by the county, not the state. The state merely ordered an increase in the over-all total of valuations within the county; It left to local officials the method of distributing that increase among individual taxpayers.

Fifth, many of the existing inequities will continue in effect for the next 30 months. That is the time it will take to complete the parcel-byparcel reassessment that the County Council has ordered. The cost, $855,000, is a measure of the failure of the county's past assessment practices.

What has been gained? The state's action is a step toward equalization of assessments as between counties, a proper end in itself. Among other things, this is essential to a fair sharing of state funds for public school purposes.

Likewise, equalization as between St. Louis county and the City of St. Louis is essential to the proper functioning of any metropolitan districts that may be brought into being to solve area-wide problems. The new Metropolitan St. Louis Sewer District now is in position to finance its activities through property taxes without inflicting undue hardship on city property owners. As soon as the county has complied with the state's order the District ought to consider taking advantage of this opportunity.

Finally, the state's order has prodded the county into a complete revaluation of all property. This eventually ought to bring fairness and equity to the assessment rolls. When that day arrives, some 30 months hence, more than a few county taxpayers might be inclined to fire off a cheer for the State Tax Commission.

How to Defend Foreign Aid

The foreign aid appropriations bill wound up closer to the House figures than to those of the Senate, and it was the House which had cut the President's requests most sharply. The final figure is $2,703,341,750 as against a presidential request for $3,266,641,750.

However, the conferees then restored $302,000,000 of military aid by authorizing the expenditure of previously appropriated funds which had not been spent. This matter of unspent or unobligated funds has created much bafflement in Congress and Senator Mansfield of Montana, no enemy of the principle of foreign aid, is right in calling for

For example, the House Appropriations Committee was understandably shocked by the Defense Department's action in obligating more than 500 million dollars of foreign aid funds on June 30, the last day of the 1955 fiscal year. This money had been made available by Congress last year on the plea that it was urgently needed.

Since the Defense Department let the whole year go by without earmarking the funds, there is a strong presumption that in fact they were not urgently needed in fiscal 1955. And when the department then leaped in to obligate half a billion in one day (in order to avoid lapse of the funds with the end of the fiscal year), nobody could be blamed for concluding that the purpose was to use up past appropriations in a hurry so that the way would be cleared for seeking new appropriations.

This kind of practice is bound to make it increasingly difficult to win congressional approval for a sound foreign aid program. To defend the program against unjust criticisms, any grounds for just criticism should be removed.

More Than a 5-5-3 Bomb Formula Disarmament and peace are much like the hen and the egg. Which comes first? Must peace be achieved before any nation dare disarm? Or is peace the fruit of disarmament?

The historical fact is that, with the exception of the medieval Truce of God enforced by acceptance of authority higher than that of temporal powers, there always has been reluctance on the part of rival states to lay aside weapons. Always there have been suspicions, understand able suspicions.

Thus it is that modern states have never been able to achieve much more than the London and Washington naval treaties and the establishment of the 5-5-3-1.8 ratio for between-the-wars fleets Some such half-step, however, seems the only possible approach.

Realizing this, Missouri's Senator Stuart Symington months ago proposed his "economic dis armament" plan. Senator Thomas C. Hennings and the two Illinois Senators, Paul H. Douglas and Everett M. Dirksen, joined him in sponsor ing a resolution which has now been adopted by Senate without objection.

This calls for study of a graduated limit on the portion of its resources a nation might use for armaments so that more and more might be devoted to civilian production. It has been called "butter over guns" plan. If perfected, it would not only cut down the size of armies. navies and air fleets, but would at the same time tend to raise the welfare of nations, thus reducing the possible causes of wars in which their fighting forces might be employed. Obviously such factors as relative wealth, productivity, access to raw materials and markets would complicate the application of such a formula. Everybody knows that. In fact, when Sens. tor Symington first talked about the plan many felt it was as impossible as it was desirable. But at that time Geneva would have been dismissed as a conference to be held only in a dream world.

The Geneva talks, however, were held in a real world. They proclaimed good will and good intentions. These must be made concrete in the months ahead. And in that hard work, the Symington formula may be helpful. As always, details must be worked out. But there is advantage in the very fact that more is contemplated here than just a 5-5-3-1.8 ratio of A and

Argument Full of Wind and Air

It is clear enough that Senator Eastland of Louisiana and Senators Johnston and Thurmond South Carolina are fighting the appointment Solicitor General Simon E. Sobeloff as judge of the Circuit Court of Appeals because he argued the school segregation case before the Su preme Court. But in apparent fear that this is not enough for their cause, a more "judicial" argument is now being used.

Attention is being called to a speech in which Judge Sobeloff said, in effect, that the Supreme Court is a second legislature, that it not only administers law but also makes law. His opponents imply that such talk advances a dangerous, an unconstitutional doctrine-one which should not be entertained by a federal judge.

This is sheer humbug. To some extent, the United States has always been governed by judge-made law-either the common law borrowed from England or the interpretations of Constitution and statutes by American judges. Neither King, nor Congress, nor Constitution, written or unwritten, can anticipate in detail all the situations subject to litigation. Crown or legislature can only promulgate general laws. The judiciary must apply these, and with due respect for the sovereign intent, it must seek to bridge the gaps between the law and the realities which it must adjudicate. For the sake of continuity and so that men may know what is expected of them, judges seek to do so by reference to their own earlier decisions. But even precedents must

The old books cannot reflect every aspect of a changing world. The law, too, must grow; and judges have their part in fostering this growth. arely a realization of this function is anything but a judicial disqualification. Senators Eastland, Johnston and Thurmond had better give up their adventure in jurisprudence and stick to what is really annoying them. After all, everybody knows.

The Bolt in a Bottle

White lightning is a whisky with the impact of a bolt from the blue. Sometimes it is called white mule, in deference to its kick. Devotees of daiguiris, martinis and suchlike wouldn't know about all that, but there are North Carolinians who wouldn't know about daiquiris and martinis. In fact they call brown whisky "bottled chemicals," and turn up their noses instead of their mouths. So reports Newsweek magazine

"They don't want what they call 'red whisky." They want it to burn all the way down," Newsweek quotes the chairman of the Winston-Salem Alcoholic Control Board, Guy T. Ward. Accordingly. Mr. Ward went to one of the distilleries and asked it to produce white lightning, long a monopoly of the moonshiner. His idea was that it would reduce the illegal traffic in liquor.

"White Lightning Corn Whisky" is therefore now on sale. Its label is decorated with a bolt of lightning. "Clear as the mountain dew," it proud ly proclaims, "100 proof. Less than one month

A Statute to Be Changed

Circuit Judge Ivan Lee Holt Jr. has ruled in effect that the St. Louis School Board under the statutes must maintain a captive architectural division to design its own school buildings. This means that even though the Board might be able to obtain work of higher quality and lower cost by employing private architects it is prohibited

Whether the schools could save money by hiring outsiders is a matter of some dispute. The A. T. Kearney & Co. servey of the system's non-instructional activities indicated that the "Board would have saved between $350,000 and $500,000 of its 1951 Bond Issue program of $17,230,000 been handled by an outside architect rather than its own captive department." Building Commissioner V. Harry Rhodes, who in this defending the Board's right to hire outsiders, denies this. In his view the captive architectural division is a fine thing.

the taxpayer to support a captive architectural force, this is neither reasonable nor in the public interest. The School Board is about to embark on a $16,395,000 construction and modernization program and it ought to be free to hire outsiders or maintain its own staff-whichever course promises the greater benefits. The way for the Board to assure itself that minimum of freedom and home rule is for it to push at the first opportunity for a change in the law.

Money Means More in the House Nobody should be more disturbed about the notion that politics is a dirty business than a olitician. That is what Senator Hennings of Missouri told the House Elections Committee in explaining his campaign spending bill now pending in the Senate.

Nothing has contributed more to the suspicion of elected officials, he said, than the manner in which campaign funds are raised and how a candidate has to look the other way if he is not to be forced into downright falsification. Fortunate-Congress can help itself-if it wants to-by setting more realistic limits on expenditures but also demanding full responsibility and publicity. This is one of those propositions which never draws any outright opposition. You either speak up for honest campaign funds-or keep your mouth shut. Sadly, there are those who have given their hostages to special interests or have persuaded their consciences to accept other "easy" arrangements and so have no taste for new and open methods. Publicity might threaten their tenure. So adoption of the Hennings proposals by the Senate is by no means certain. Even favorable committee action on these sweep-ing measures set a precedent.

House members, up for election every two years, may be more interested. Campaign worries and compromises are not so likely to be lost in the depths of their memories. There is not time enough to forget. They also are generally closer to the voters and more likely to hear and feel public disrespect for public servants. So Representatives may be more eager than "safe" Senators to take at least this step toward the rehabilitation of the political profession.

We learn that some legislators have been cool to the food stamp plan because of the cost. The latest estimate of the cost, which was furnished to Congress by the United States Department of Agriculture, is $1,400,000,000 per year.

Farm-Price Parity, Better Meals

Of course that is a lot of money. But it would be a cheap price to pay for disposing of our surplus perishable com-modities, thereby enabling farm prices to rise to about parity, and at the same time putting tens of thousands of worthy

As a result of the plan, the Farmers Union estimates, "the total national income, shared by farmers, food stores, handlers, processors, and other businesses linked to food (which is the nations blurget businesses) tion's biggest business) would increase by five to six billion dollars a year. Federal income taxes would be increased about a billion a year-about half the cost of food subsidies. And Government price support operations would be greatly reduced."

May 18 the approximate total cost of commodities held in Government inventory was $4,700,000,000. Most of these costs would be eliminated.

It is the judgment of the M.F.A.'s State Legislative Committee that a properly administered food stamp plan could get our surplus perishable products consumed by Americans and that this would result in farmers receiving approximately 100 per cent of parity in the market place.

The problem of wheat and cotton could not be solved by such a plan, although these commodities could be helped a lot by the issuance of stamps for products containing wheat flour and those containing cotton. But if the problem of surplus perishables such as poultry and dairy products, meat, fruit and

Stamps to Put Food on the Table

The Mirror Public Opinion

Missouri farm organization supports food stamp proposals now before Congress; these would use surpluses to feed needy Americans; trouble with price support program is that it does not get surpluses consumed and stamp system would help to that end.

H. E. Klinefelter, Editor, in The Missouri Farmer, Published by the Missouri Farmers' Association

In the March issue of The Missouri Farmer the food stamp plan as a means of getting farm surpluses consumed by needy Americans was described. The article mentioned that S. 627, a bill introduced by 23 Senators, including Symington of Missouri and headed by Kerr of Oklahoma, might have a chance of passage.

Plan Used Successfully in '30s

The subject of a food stamp plan has been before the Congress since about 1943, having been kept alive by such legislators as Senators Alken of Vermont and Humphrey of Minnesota. The plan was tried out in several cities during the 1930s, where it worked successfully, but was ended when food became scarce during the war.

The biggest flaw in our price support program has been that it falled to provide a means of getting the surpluses consumed. Most of the proposals have been that the surpluses be dumped on foreign countries and either sold cheap or given outright to needy people in those countries.

We have no objection to exporting our We have no objection to exporting our surpluses to countries that need and welcome them, but we believe that charity should begin at home. Notwithstanding we are having unprecedented prosperity (except in agriculture) there are thousands of Americans who are compelled by circumstances beyond their control to live on a diet below that required for good health.

The oft-told stories of various churchmen who participated in the resolution.

Miss Fisher has written a generally sound biography which depicts Abad y Queipo as he really was: "A conscientious, cultured, and public-spirited churchman, a very loyal subject, yet a severe critic of all phases of administration in the decaying Spanish monarchy... a progressive reformer, economist and statesman working to uphold the tottering monarchy and his beloved adopted country—New Spain."

By Bob Broeg

There's an old Joe Miller loke about insane ingenuity that's about as unfunny as the Cardinals today would find the resourcefulness of Brooklyn's league-leading Dodgers, so far ahead they'll lap the field any afternoon or night now.

The old yuk, if you can stand it, was about the way to prevent a dog from going mad in August. Wanna really know how? Shoot him in July, that's how. And that's about as unbearable as the ingenuity of the Dodgers, who last night at Busch Stadium demonstrated away to keep from hitting into double plays and, as a result, won another ball game.

Know how? Why, it's easy, the way the Dodgers did it. After hitting into four twin killings in the first five innings and trailing Larry Jackson and the Redbirds by three runs, they suddenly began to do their hiting with two out. And if you've ever seen anybody hit into a double play with two down, Gramps, you must have beaten Abner Doubleday to the draw.

So it was escaping the rally-killing two-for-one defensive trap the Cardinals had laid for them, that the bubbling Brooks broke out with two away in the seventh for four runs, to take the lead. And after the Redbirds temporarily had tied in the home half, Manager Walter Aston's athletes gained a 5-4 victory by scoring the winning run after two were down in the eighth inning.

Cards Miss Big Chances. eighth inning.

Cards Miss Big Chances. By contrast to the adroitness of the Dodgers, not to mention timeliness of their come-frombehind offense, the Redbirds once again couldn't deliver when a basehit would have meant a big inning particularly. when a basehit would have meant a big inning, particularly early. And, friend, you just don't beat that Brooklyn ball club too often by posting only four runs on the scoreboard. Jackson, striving to become

Jackson, striving to become the first National League pitcher to defeat the Dodgers three times this year, gave up 10 hits before he gave up the ghost, but it was a base on balls yielded by Floyd Wooldridge, behaving as though back in the Ozarks he had never dreamed of facing the Dodgers, that finally beat the Cardinals.

The Goat deserved the defeat, The Goat deserved the deteat, which became his when Carl Furillo followed the two-out walk to light-hitting Junior Gilliam with a long double Bill Virdon couldn't hold against the right-center field wall. And, exercising an infrequent opportunity, the official scorer was able to award the victory justly, too. to award the victory justly, too. Although Russ Meyer was the Dodgers hit into one double play after another until they switched from giving up two outs at at time to doing their work with two out.

In the seventh, an inning Gil Hodges opened with a pop single to right-center, two were down when Don Zimmer singled and the amazing Don Newcombe, batting for Sponer, pounded a tremendous drive off the top of the left-center field wall, where a spectator was judged to have reached out and touched the ball. The ground-rule double, permitting only Hodges to score, momentarily deprived the Dodgers of a run. But only until Third Baseman Don Hoak lined a three-run homer into the pavilion.

Overcome 7-Run Deficit.

Rolla, which gambled by sav-ing its best pitcher, Merle Fink, for a probable game with Thofor a probable game with Tho-man-Boothe, almost outsmarted itself. Washington piled up a 7-0 lead after four innings. Weak fielding by the home team then aided Rolla as it scored five runs in both the fifth and sixth innings to take the lead sixth innings to take the lead. washington shortstop Tom Voss whacked two long homers over the precipice in left field each about 340 feet. Other circuit blows, which actually were grounders that got by the outfielders, were hit by Bill Hahne of Washington and Charles Miller of Rolla.

The Washington field, a new one, has no grass in the infield and almost none in the outfield, but the recently installed lighting system is excellent. The lack of a fence, however, makes any ball that gets past the outfielders virtually an automatic home run.

is expected to involve the housing bill. It must be passed before Congress goes home, or the Federal Housing Administration will run out of authority to insure home loans, and various other programs will expire.

Many of these provisions, including the granting of new FHA insurance authority, are not in dispute.

But a bitter fight centers around the public housing sec-tions of the measure.

Mr. Eisenhower asked for authority to build 35,000 public housing units annually in the next two years. But the House yesterday, with Republicans taking the lead, stripped from the measure all new public housing starts before passing the bill.

The vote was 396 to 3. Voting against final passage were Democrats Richard Bolling of Missouri, M. G. Burnside of West Virginia and Abraham Multer of New York.

The Senate version, passed

There were indications the conference agreement might return to the President's program, although some House diehards insisted they never would support any continuance of the public housing program.

The House also plans to act on a sugar bill to give domestic producers an increased share of the market, and on legislation to extend the Small Business Ad-

He has testified he drew a $132,-000 share of the profits in the firm in his two and one-half years in his Government post. Subcommittee sources meanwhile quoted Talbott that Attorney General Herbert Brownell, then a private attorney, had helped to draw up the original partnership agreement bgtween Talbott and Mulligan in 1951. That was before Brownell or Talbott entered Government service. The agreement has not figured in the Senate inquiry. Talbott and Mulligan signed another agreement, superseding the first one, in January 1953, about a month before Talbott became Air Force Secretary.

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y., July 30 (AP)—Tony Trabert, who lost but two tournaments in his last 18, meets former national junior champion Herb Flam today in the semifinal round of the Meadow Club tennis tournament.

The other semifinal plis defending champion Ed Moylan of Trenton, N.J., against Grant Golden of Chicago. Davis Cup ace Trabert, of course, is favored against Flam, an ex-sallor. Moylan, who has been on a streat for the last two months, is the choice against Golden.

In yesterday's quarter-finals, Trabert crushed Atushi Miyagi, a Japanese Davis Cupper, 6-3, 6-1, while Flam from Beverly Hills, Calif., defeated Sam Giammalva of Houston, Tex., 6-2, 4-6, 6-4.

Moylan had trouble with Miyagi's partner, Kosei Kamo, before emerging with a 1-6, 6-1, 7-5 triumph. Golden, too, had to go three sets to gain a 4-6, 10-8, 10-8 marathon victory over Hal Burrows of Charlottesville, Pa.

TURNCOAT'S RETURN

Former Army Cpl. Otho Bell of Hillsboro, Miss., struggles with tears as his wife embraces him on his return to this country yesterday from Communist China. Taken prisoner in Korea, Bell spurned repatriation when the fighting ended but changed his mind about life in the Red nation and came home with two turncoat comrades to face Army charges of betraying their country. At right is Bell's father, Elbert Bell.

PARIS. July 30 (AP)—The French National Assembly, in a 382-to-233 vote early today, gave Premier Faure authority to extend for six months the state of emergency in Algeria.
Thirty-seven Nationalist rebels and suspects were reported killed in new violence there yestenday.
The state of emergency declared last April—a kind of martial law providing for newspaper censorship and military trial of rebels—was due to expire Oct. 3.

It is the annual feast of Aidel-Kebir, when ardent Moslems sacrifice lambs to commemorate the Biblical story of Abraham who received a lamb from God as he was preparing to offer his son Isaac as a sacrifice.

In the new Arab quarter in Casablanca, Morocco, pamphlets were circulated calling on Moslems to kill Europeans instead of ritual sheep.

Legionnaires and paratroop commandos occupied Casablanca's Arab section. Street corners were heavily guarded, and machine guns were mounted on rooftops.

Holiday Curtailed.

The ten situation curtailed the traditional holiday ritual performed by Morocco's sultan, Mohammed Ben Moulay Arafa. The sultan traditionally kills a ritual lamb himself after riding a white horse into the country-side around Rabat, his capital. But the present sultan, whom the Nationalists have tried to kill twice, planned to go only to the mosque just outside his palace, under heavy guard.

At Meknes, in north central Morocco, a religious council named the Oulamas called on French resident general Gilbert Grandval to solve the question of the sultan, hinting he should be removed.

Does he date other girls or does he consider you're going steady? If he understands that he isn't the only one, I see no reason why you couldn't go with other boys without fear of hurting this one. You can get into circulation by inviting another date to some special party or asking him to your home with several other couples. At 14, you should be going with different boys, instead of giving all your time to me boy whom you don't particularly care for. However, as long as you're not going steady, I don't see why you would have to make a definite break with him to go with others.

THERE ARE THREE BOYS who like me a lot. I like one of them best but I don't want to hurt any of them. I date one, then when the other two find out they are quite mad. What can I do? I am 15 years old.

CRAZY MIXED-UP KID.

You mean you're complaining when three boys fight over you? And you've got problems? My only suggestion is to go with the one who asks you first-unless you want to hold out for an invitation from the favorite one and take a chance on staying at home. They haven't any right, really, to be mad when you date someone else as long as you're not going steady, so don't be upset by their bad temper. Just laugh it off and date whom you wish.

No Man to Marry

By Dr. Paul Popence

M ANY a woman has never had a proposal of marriage from a man whom she considered worth marrying, but very few women can truthfully say that they have never I can give that much en-

Not knowing you, I cannot say what's the matter with you, Carla, but you DR. PAUL POPENOE still have time. It's a fact however, that most women have had several proposals by the time they marry, and very few mature women have had none.

I CANVASSED a group of 208 educated women and found they had received an average of 2.5 proposals apiece. Eleven of them had never had a proposal, while seven had seven or more proposals each, the largest number claimed very attractive woman now about 50 years of age. However, most of the women who had had no pro posals were in the younger group with possibilities ahead

There were 23 women in the group who were more than 30 years of age and of these 23 only two claimed never to have had a proposal. Both of these were over 40 and probably represented an unmarriageable type.

I THINK it is therefore safe to say that the normal girl who gets out and meets people will have some proposals whether she wants them or not. Of course, the problem is to get the proposals from the right men.

If you need any help for this purpose, write Dr. Popenoe with a stamped, self-address envelope and a dime for a copy of his little 20 page booklet "This Way to Marriage. It gives some detailed instructions that will be useful to any girl and will incidentally be of great interest and value to

His mother and father are complete strangers to me and my family. They will arrive in town a week before the wedding and will stay at a hotel. I would like to know what is proper in regard to a meeting prior to the wedding. Is it up to my parents to call and invite them to come to see us, or is it up to his parents

It is quite possible, however, that she is unaware of this convention and the fact that they are coming to the wedding they approve of the marriage. Peppermint Tea Cookies.

Two cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon double-acting baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half cup butter or margarine, two-thirds cup sugar, one egg, unbeaten, two tablespoons light cream, one-half teaspoon peppermint extract, six squares candymaking chocolate, three table-spoons butter.

Sift flour once measure and spoons butter.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cream one-half cup butter, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat well. Add cream and peppermint axtract. Mix thoroughly. Then add flour, a small amount at a time, blending well after each addition. Chill several hours.

Roll a fifth of the dough at a time on lightly floured board. Cut with floured two and one-fourth-inch scalloped cooky cutter and place on ungreased baking sheet. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) eight to 10 minutes, or until edges are brown. Remove from baking sheet and cool.

Heat chocolate over hot water until partly melted. Remove from heat, add three tablespoons butter, and stir until entirely melted. Cool until thickened. Spread on half of the cookies. Top with remaining cookies.

Top with remaining cookies. Yield: three dozen double cookies.

Cure for Skin Aliment.

In the last few years, we have heard much about vitamins. The study of vitamins has been conflined almost entirely to human foods, but, by applying this knowledge to the feeding of dogs, very beneficial results have been obtained.

Dogs, like humans, suffer from the lack of certain elements in their food. Many of the minor canine skin aliments, for instance, can be traced directly to improper feeding. When a dog is fed an increased amount of vitamin A, the skin trouble often disappears quickly.

When your dog suffers from loss of hair or skin trouble, take him to a veterinarian for advice and proper treatment. If the condition is not too serious, first try feeding your dog less food, but increasing the amount of vegetables in his diet.

Mix the vegetables with raw, lean meat. Often this is all that HYDE PARK.

I recently quoted a poem in this column, "Song of Peace," by Lloyd Stone, thinking that it had never been in print. I am now told I should have given credit to the Lorenz Publishing Co., as they had copyrighted it in 1934. They would have been glad to have me publish it and give them credit for it, which I am now doing, and I only regret that I did not do it at the proper time.

THE OTHER DAY I received a copy of a speech made in the House of Representatives by Congressman Frank Thompson Jr. of New Jersey on the subject of an advertisement that ap-peared in most of the New York newspapers and which contained an editorial by Huntington Hartford.

The advertisement attacked American art criticism, abstract art, the contemporary theater, art dealers and museum officials and the public. Only a man with great wealth could have published this editorial and reached thousands of people with his

We may not like or understand some of the experiments made by modern artists but they have a right to experiment. Art dealers and museums should exhibit their art and the public in the long run will make the decision whether the art is good or bad.

Ideas, however, require more careful handling, and the channels of communication should be free to all points of view, so that those who differ from our point of view may be able to reach the same public that we reach. In the case we are considering it seems to me that this fairness of presenting ideas freely has not been achieved.

NYONE who is called upon (or takes it upon himself) to decide an argument between expert partners has quite a job on his hands, because there are sure to be valid points on both sides. In the following case, however, it appears to this observer that West clearly had the better of the debate.

West, dealer.

If this bidding looks strange or "ordinary" eyes—it is, but this sort of thing is common when four experts get into a tense situation, with the high cards just about equally divided. Psychic tactics (e.g., North's one-spade overcall) and all sorts of jockeying around. Note, however, that there is method in the madness. North, knowing that East-West undoubtedly had ever, that there is method in the madness. North, knowing that East-West undoubtedly had the high-ranking spade suit, felt impelled to do what he could to discourage adverse spade bidding.

South made the three-diamond rubber, contract, for game and rubber, and then East and West exchanged "compliments."
East's argument was simple. He had opened the bidding very lightly.

He had opened the bidding very lightly, as a tactical measure, and he had made a business double of one spade. That was as far as he could go. The opponents had stopped at two diamonds on their 40 score, and West had voluntarily reopened the auction. Clearly, then, it was West's responsibility (East said) to take care of the three-diamond call when that came around.

West disagreed, and rather violently. He stressed the fact that East-West could have made three spades, and said that East should have known they could, simply on the strength of his own distribution. Thus, East's pass over three diamonds, West said, was indefensible—and this observer agrees.

Those Extra Pounds Are Health Threat

By J. Earl Smith, M.D.

St. Louis Health Com

ORE and more people are becoming aware of the dangers of overweight—one of the biggest problems in preventive medicine today. It used to be that vanity or pride in one's appearance was the prime reason for reducing. Today the factors of life and health have been added. Obesity is not only a physical impediment in itself, but may be a contributing factor in heart disease, high blood pressure, diabetes, gall bladder disease, arthritis and many other serious illnesses.

serious illnesses. In almost every single case those extra pounds we so de-plore come from eating too much food, and the only way to get rid of them is by taking in few-art and democracy. We must guard our freedoms jealously, for it is these very freedoms that differentiate our form of government from Communism, Nazism and Fascism."

Undoubtedly, Mr. Hartford, in writing his editorial, was expressing a certain reaction, and he had certainly not thought through all the implications in trying to buy public opinion by printing an advertisement of this kind. True, we sell products in this way and we try truthfully to say what they contain, and urge the public to buy, Mr. Hartford may well have thought we should sell ideas in the same way.

Ideas, however, require more did of them is by taking in few real-orly taking in body weight. In this way the body will gradually burn some of the extra fat it has stored.

Most overweight persons want to lose weight but too often they want to accomplish it quickly wan comes so hungry he goes back to his old eating habits and starts shopping around for an easier way to reduce without dietary restrictions.

Many restrictions.

Many resort to pills or drugs, none of which can remove calories from the food we eat and many are actually dangerous to health. The mechanically-minded may turn to vibrators and other devices advertised to reduce certain portions of the body. Then there is exercise. But exercise without diet is useless. You'd have to walk four and a half miles to work off just one chocolate nut sundae.

and a half miles to work off just one chocolate nut sundae.

All this trial and error is expensive and adds up to just one thing—the only sure way to reduce is to change eating habits. This means learning the essential foods and including them in your daily diet. First visit your doctor for advice and help. He will tell you how much you should lose and give you a well-balanced diet that will keep you healthy, and help you look your best. Then it is up to the individual to resist those extra calories—that piece of pie or cake, rich sauces and gravles, those soft drinks and second helpings!

1 MANY MEN ARE DIS-TRESSED BY HAVING HIGH-PITCHED VOICES. CAN THIS

Answer to Question 1.

Considerably. In teaching men public speaking, I have often lowered such voices several tones in three months by having them practice saying, "Bob did go," or the letters B.D.G. without letting the sound out. This stratches the vocal B.D.G. without letting the sound out. This stretches the vocal muscles. Speech clinics have a number of methods—doubtless better than mine. It is often psychological—and not due to sex underdevelopment. Som a boys become embarrassed while their voices are changing. They their voices are changing. They clutch their voice are changing. They clutch their voice chords and prevent the development of lower tones.

Answer to Question 2.

True—far more. Our parents and grandparents did not need lectures and books on marriage preparation because there was preparation because there was a far more intimate family life. The girls learned how to buy, cook, serve, and preserve food;

UNHAPPY WHO FELTS manage a household; care for children and members of the family who were sick. In short—they lived a complete family life. Nowadays each goes his own way, knowing little about each other and the home, so they must learn these things from must learn these things from must learn these things from books and lectures or marry in Ignorance.

Answer to Question 3.

Doubtful. Even Neitzsche, German philosopher, said it is doubtful that any woman who felt she was well-dressed ever caught a cold. How she avoids it with nothing above the "plunging line" when men are shivering in tuxedos, is unknown. In her housedress and with hair in curlers, she wants to know why you turn down the heat and freeze her to death—but the moment she is "half-concealed and half-revealed" in an evening gown, she asks if you an evening gown, she asks if you want to roast her alive.

But last night was different.
Cordiality was the keynote.

The visitors freshened up after their wearing bus ride, then attended a cocktail party and dinner given in their honor by the agriculture committee of the Omaha Chamber of Commerce.

Then they went to bed to rest up for their three-day junket through Nebraska, which was to begin today with visits to a turkey broiler plant near Venice, a soil conservation project at Wahoo and the 500-acre farm of W. A. Steavenson near Fontenelle, 12 miles north of Fremont.

TALKS CONTINUE IN EFFORT TO END CATERPILLAR STRIKE

PEORIA. III. July 30 (AP)-A federal mediator arranged meetings today with union and management negotiators in an attempt to settle an hours-old strike at Caterpillar Tractor Co. At issue was the demand for a 2:

At issue was the demand for a union shop.
At last night's meeting, the CIO United Auto Workers was granted further concessions on its pension plan and a seventh paid holiday, Dec. 24, but stood pat on the union shop issue. The union represents 18,000 of the plant's 23,000 workers.

A union shop was one of three major demands for a new contract. Agreement was reached Thursday on a layoff plan patterned after recent settlements within the automotive industry. Agreement was reported near on the union's wage demands. Originally asking for a straight 15-cent-an-hour increase, the union scaled it down Thursday without announcing the new demand. Caterpillar reportedly has offered a 6-cent increase with an additional 4-to-8-cent increase in some upper wage classifications. The average wage was estimated to be $2.40 an hour.

mended a multi-olino dollar road program to be financed by special bond issues. A Democratic bill calling for financing by increased taxes on gasoline, trucks, tires and tubes was defeated in the House Wednesday. The Senate approved a road building measure with no provisions for financing.

A picnic at the Izaak Walton Park west of Fremont was to end the day.

Vladimir Matskevich, first deputy minister of Soviet agriculture and leader of the 12-man delegation, had nothing but praise for American farming methods at a press conference earlier yesterday on an Iowa State College experimental farm near Shenandoah.

He said he will "utilize everything" he saw that "is useful to us" and suggested similar exchanges of scientists and industrialists between the United States and Russia.

Matskevich said his tour of Iowa had sold him on America's hybrid corn production, mechanization and soil conservation method.

The Soviet Union, he said, would undertake "widescale production" of hybrid corn as a result of what he had seen in Icwa.
